

Classical crossover violinist, singer/songwriter, and record producer Lucine Fyelon has been performing and touring around the world since 2009. After her breakthrough song "Poundcake" went viral on Facebook, collecting 21 million views within a few days, Lucine wrote and produced two studio albums titled "LUCINE" and "IMPERFECT". She caught the attention of the Apollo TV producers, who invited her to participate in 'Showtime At The Apollo' on FOX TV hosted by Steve Harvey. Lucine ended up taking first place, with the audience choosing her as the winner. After this Lucine opened for hip hop artists Jermaine Dupri and Jamie Foxx, as well as headlining OKC Jazz Festival. On her next artistic journey, Lucine signed to go on tour with renowned Cirque du Soleil's arena show 'Cristal' as a solo violinist and singer. Over the course of her musical career, Lucine has been part of numerous recordings, commercials, TV shows, American award shows, festivals and performed hundreds of shows in most prestigious concert halls and arenas around the world.

In 2024 Lucine performed alongside Nancy Ajram, Assala, and Asma Imnawar for Riyadh season as a featured violinist accompanied by the Egyptian Orchestra. She later performed with the Riyadh Orchestra as a soloist for the LEAP festival. After living in Los Angeles for over two decades, Lucine was invited to perform her debut concert in Aram Khachaturian Concert Hall in her native Armenia, alongside esteemed Armenian Jazz Pianist and composer Gary Kesayan. Lucine is endorsed by G&h Plugs.
